Repeat the "Hello World" exercise in Chapter 2 of "Beginning iPhone Development" with the following modifications:

1. Use your first name as the name of the project.
2. Instead of "Hello World", print a centered message with at least 2 lines of text that includes your name. In the example shown, the message "Jerry is too cool for school" is displayed.
3. Modify both the background color and the text color of your app to something other than the default black on white. In the example shown, the text is in blue and the background is in pink.
4. Use one of the 2 supplied image files for your app's logo.
